		17 3	10	9938	Apptd. H. T. from 1 September 1909 (Succession Lists) - Reports is a very unfavourable report & reviews also of the expenditure of time & skill in which he has conducted his office in connection with the unpaid debts he has 20 preparatory lists before him. It is important that the position he has created Cr. no longer be tolerated. He should clearly understand - therefore, that unless he performs his weekly duties in a satisfactory manner & also takes steps to pay his debts there will be no option but to report his case to the P.S. Comm.r with a view to his services being dispensed with.
		2 12	09	H. Lark	Shows actively & generally good ability, but in almost every detail a want of preparation for his work was evident. In consequence his teaching was not definite & not backed by strong lessons. Only one really good lesson was given. His management is not from a reliable. His supervision was defective. Consequently the discipline was not well maintained. 66 Years
		16 5	10	H. - -	An active & intelligent man & capable of good work but he is not an abstract & is not exercising his best efforts shows great carelessness in work in an unsatisfactory way, & throw work & schemes aside without a reasonable excuse

A YOUNG MAN'S DOWNFALL.

RESULT OF BACKING BILLS.

At the City Court to-day, Ugo Bertoli, aged 21, late a clerk in the Government Office of Ports and Harbors, pleaded guilty to larceny as a servant of L26, the property of her Majesty. Mr Walsh prosecuted. Mr Gillott defended.

Mr Rowe, secretary of Ports and Harbors, explained the facts, which were simple. Prisoner ought to have passed the L26 on to Mr Anderson, contractor, for the maintenance of the light at Portsea. When brought to book he admitted having applied the money to meeting his liability for having backed bills on account of his friends. He was a first-rate clerk, and had been six or seven years in the Government employ, beginning as a pupil teacher.

Mr Gillott appealed to the Bench for mercy. He asked them to deal summarily with the case. Bertoli was a young man of hitherto unblemished character. Ignorant of the ways of business he backed bills in which two of his friends were concerned, one a bank clerk. These friends had left the country. Bertoli had thought he would get the money and be able to pay Anderson. He did not spend it in any kind of dissipation.

Mr Taverner, M.L.A., gave evidence in high eulogium of Bertoli's past character, as also did Mr Stephens, sub-editor of the "Age."

Mr Call, P.M., after consultation with the Bench, announced a sentence of two months' imprisonment.
