COUNTY COURT.

Spiers v. Morris.—For £28, goods sold and delivered.

Mr. Worsley for the plaintiff.

Defendant admitted the debt, but said he wanted an explanation as to a part of the demands.

Plaintiff said he would abandon items in the account amounting to £4 odd, which had been supplied for the children's recreation at the Amphitheatre School, of which the defendant was teacher. This amount is in abeyance pending the decision of the Police Magistrate.

His Honor gave a verdict for £23 16s 7d with £1 1s costs.

Defendant hoped His Honour would take it into consideration that he was a poor man, and allow him time for payment. He was willing to discharge the debt at the rate of £2 per month.

Plaintiff said the defendant had been in the receipt of about £12 a month for the last fifteen months, and he (plaintiff) had good authority for saying that the defendant was contemplating filing his schedule. It was evident that he meant to pay nobody, and he said so.

His Honor on looking over the items of the account observed that all the defendant appeared to have paid for the maintenance of his family for twelve months and upwards was £4, which was disgraceful in a man receiving such a salary. Besides, there was an item for £5 cash lent.

Plaintiff—That money was lent to him by me to enable him to bring his wife and family from Melbourne, and instead of acting with common honesty or gratitude to those who befriended him, he was in the habit of squandering his earnings in drink.

His Honour said it was one of the most aggravating and disgraceful cases that had ever come before him; and more particularly as the defendant was an instructor of youth, who should set a good example to others.
