EXECUTION OF BENNETT

Long Statement From Gallows

In the presence of the Sheriff (Mr J. B. Richards), the gaol governor (Mr Bowen), two medical officers, and a number of warders, David Bennett, 59, who was convicted of a charge of criminal assault on a four-year-old girl at North Carlton, was hanged at the Metropolitan Gaol, Coburg, this morning.

While on the gallows Bennett made a statement lasting for nine minutes, dealing with certain aspects of his trial and conviction.

At 9.59 a.m. the Sheriff and the gaol governor knocked on the door of the condemned cell and formally demanded the body of David Bennett, according to law. The door was opened by the Sheriff, and the hangman, a youngish man, coatless and heavily masked, entered the cell. He was followed by his assistant, another young man, also masked with black silk.

A few words were spoken to Bennett by Canon E. H. Davies just before he left for the gallows.

Bennett was dressed in the regulation prison uniform of white trousers and a grey tunic.

When he reached the gallows the Sheriff asked: "David Bennett, have you anything to say?"

Bennett then made his long statement.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST TRIAL

"I have never done anything in my life to deserve this," he said. "I have done wrongs, I will admit. Anyone I have injured I ask them to forgive me as I forgive those who have injured me."

Bennett's voice was firm and he began calmly to dissect points in the Crown case which had been presented against him.

"I still contend," he said, "that my case was never properly or adequately put before the various tribunals. In the trial court false evidence was sworn against me. I made an endeavor to get counsel to obtain certain information, but failed. After the jury trial, I still tried to get this information, but failed."

"I still say false evidence was given to the jury. The only alternative I had was to appeal. I made out an application for an appeal, and later I had to give a detailed statement to the Crown covering my case and the grounds for an appeal. This I forwarded to the proper channels. I was

I applied for legal aid, but it did not give me satisfaction in the appeal court. In that court, the Crown had a typed statement covering the points in my case, and the Bench also had a copy of it."

"The presiding chairman of the Appeal Court (Sir Leo Cussen)," Bennett continued, "asked whether counsel would like to read the typed statement. Counsel decided to outline the statement instead of reading it."

PREVIOUS CONVICTION

Bennett went on to discuss details of the case.

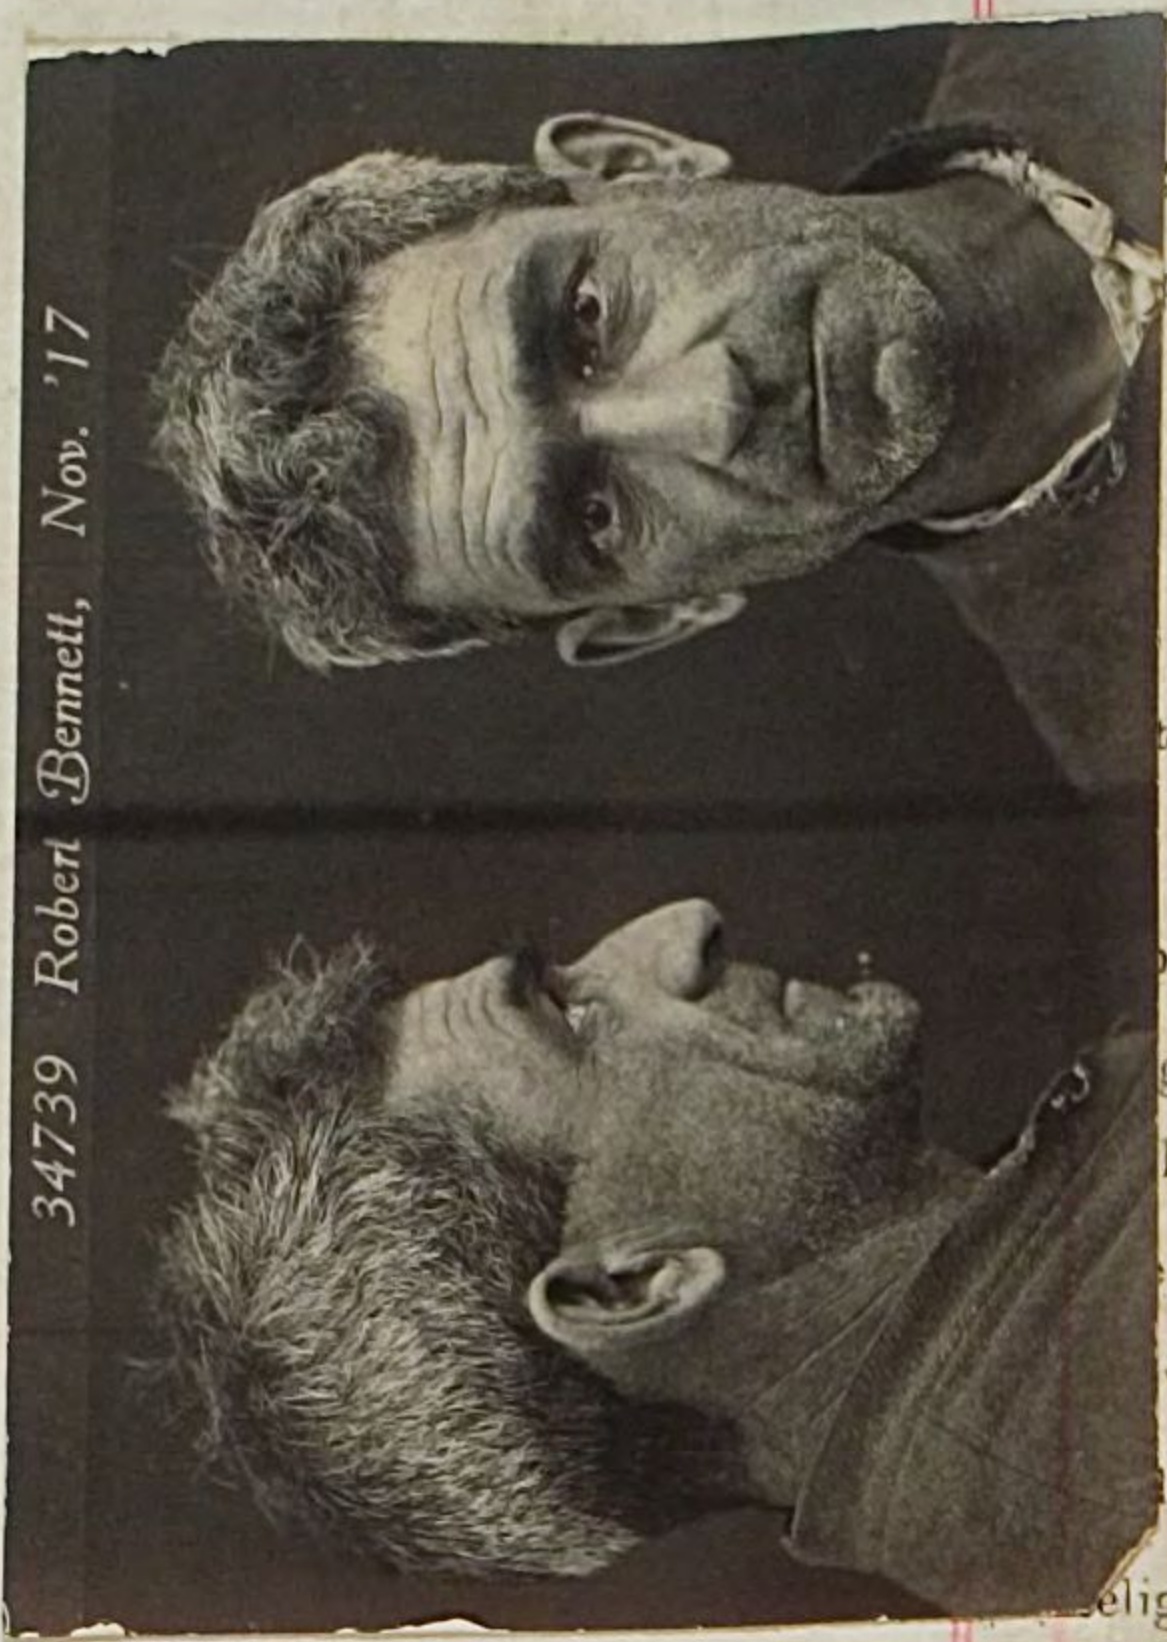

"I was never condemned to death in West Australia when I was arrested for criminal assault, which was unfounded," he continued. "When I was found guilty, the judge said if I had any friends I would not be long in gaol. I met Angus Murray in Fremantle prison. When he got out, he got in touch with the authorities to try to secure my release. He proved to the authorities that I should never have been found guilty of criminal assault because no criminal assault had been committed."

Concluding his remarks, Mr. Gurney

Concluding his statement, Bennett said: "I wish to thank the officers of the penal administration, the Salvation Army, and others, who have been good to me."

"Others I forgive as I hope to be forgiven. Good-bye."

It was nine minutes past ten o'clock when Bennett finished speaking, and the execution was immediately carried out.
