THE HERALD, SA

FOSTER MOTHER'S FATE

SUICIDE BARS ARREST

FORMERLY NOTED ATHLETE

WON HUNDRED RACES

Mrs Isabella Newman, who committed suicide at Mordialloc yesterday afternoon, when about to be arrested in connection with the disappearance of certain babies, was known in athletic circles some years ago as Madame Isa Bell.

TRACK CONTESTS.

In March, 1908, she issued a challenge to run any woman in Australia for the championship, and Miss Ivy Evans, of Bendigo, responded. Three races were arranged, over distances of 50, 100, and 150 yards, for £50 a side, and a sash and badge worth £10.

Madame Bell had then won over 100 races, and had never been defeated until Miss Evans beat her for the "grand challenge championship." In the 50 yards event Miss Evans won by five yards in 7⅕ sec. Madame Bell was also defeated easily in each of the other heats.

Detective Sainsbury and Olholm are making inquiries at Mordialloc concerning Mrs Newman and her habits. In view of the fact that she has been known for years, and has undertaken the care of infants, it is hoped that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of many children will yet be cleared up. The land surrounding her residence will be closely searched.

A search of a similar nature was made in 1893 at Brunswick, where Mrs Frances Minnie Knorr, a notorious baby farmer, lived. The police dug up the yard and found the remains of several children. Knorr was executed in Melbourne gaol for child murder on January 15, 1894.

MOTHER SEEKS CHILD.

Anxious inquiries were made to-day by a young woman regarding a baby that was handed to Mrs Newman a few weeks ago. The woman stated that the mother was unmarried, and unable to properly provide for her offspring. Mrs Newman, on becoming acquainted with the fact that the young mother was desirous that somebody should adopt her baby, is alleged to have communicated with her, and to have represented that she was a commercial traveller's wife. She stated that she had no children, but that she was passionately fond of them, was prepared to adopt one, and did not require a premium for doing so. All that she would want would be a perambulator and some baby's clothing. These were provided, and, with the baby—only 17 days old—were handed to Mrs Newman on November 8 at the Malvern railway station. Mrs Newman is said to have pressed the baby to her bosom, fondled the infant, and said that it would always have a kind mother who would have it educated and looked after as if it were "her very own."

A few days later the mother received a letter from Mrs Newman, stating that the baby was well, and "looked like a little prince in his perambulator," but since the receipt of that letter there has been no trace of the infant. A perambulator and clothing found have been identified as being like those that had been handed to Mrs Newman.

It is thought that Mrs Newman might have transferred her charge to some other woman, who had advertised her willingness to adopt a baby. The detectives have possession of a number of letters containing the names and addresses of women who have been in communication with Mrs Newman. They would like any who had dealings with her to call on them to inspect articles of infants' clothing found at the house yesterday.

PREVIOUS COURT CASES.

Mrs Newman figured prominently in the courts in August, 1908, in regard to the disappearance of a child born at Geelong. The child was handed to Newman at Coburg, and £20 was paid to her at the same time. Mrs Newman said that she handed it to a Mrs Milburn, but after it left Coburg no trace of it could be found. Newman was prosecuted for a breach of the Infant Life Protection Act in not having notified the Neglected Children Department of her transaction, and was fined £15. This conviction was quashed on appeal.

At Coburg Mrs Newman swore that she gave the child to Mrs Milburn at a house in Fitzroy, but at the Court of General Sessions, in connection with the appeal, she swore that the handing over took place near the Trades Hall. The police regarded Mrs Milburn as a mythical person, and prosecuted Newman for perjury, for which she was sent to gaol for 12 months. She was discharged from Pentridge prison on March 25, 1911.
