DEATH OF MR. T. H. REID.—After lingering for no less than five weeks, the school teacher Thomas H. Reid, who tried to commit suicide on the 14th of last month by blowing his brains out with a revolver, died in the Bendigo Hospital on Saturday evening. From the first the case was considered hopeless, but the sufferer appeared at times to rally, and doubts were then entertained that a bullet was embedded in his brain. The whole of the body and limbs were paralyzed, notwithstanding which, and the mortal injury to his brain, he retained consciousness up to almost the last moment. On Saturday afternoon he talked considerably, and Mrs. Reid and the Rev. Canon MacCallagh were sent for. At half-past eight o'clock the unfortunate suicide expired. A magisterial inquiry will be held to-day.

Died 17 December 1881.

REMARKS.

DISGRACEFUL EXHIBITION. — The State school teacher to whom we alluded yesterday regarding the disturbance created in the vicinity of North Sandhurst, Mr. Thomas P. Reid, a teacher of the North Sandhurst school, was summoned for assault by his wife on Monday. The defendant, who had been drinking, was stated, intoxicated, to have refused his wife, to whom he has only been married for twelve months, the taking refuge in a hotel. The defendant was absent from school on Monday, and it was taken charge of by an assistant. At the Police Court yesterday the case was remanded for a week, in order to enable the parties to arrive at an amicable settlement of the dispute. The case is set to his scholars is not a healthy one.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BY A TEACHER. — Mr. H. Reid, a well-known teacher, who, up to recently, had been in the employ of the Education department, shot himself last evening. He conducted a private night school in a building near the Bendigo Hospital. It was this place, about 7 p.m., that the unfortunate teacher took place. Up to the time of writing it is an attempt to commit suicide, but as a letter is embedded in the brain there is no hope whatever for his life. At three o'clock on Monday he was still alive in the Bendigo hospital, was talking, and appeared to be slightly stronger. The wound is directly capable to drink the unfortunate man who at a time had a good position under the department, having for his processes, and after repeated warnings and inquiries, been compelled out nine months ago to resign his last appointment at Taradale, a reduction in status on the North Sandhurst School. Mr. Reid was twice married. He has a wife and two young children. The unfortunate children are referred to in a note left by their erring father, written a few minutes before he used the revolver on himself, and in which he feelingly commends them to the care of any friends he may have left. For several weeks past he was apparently demented, and was we believe receiving medical attention. A full account appears elsewhere.
