Mr. Robert Craig, M.A., LL.B., whose death is announced to-day, was a notable figure in the development of education in Victoria. He came out from Canada as a boy, and after private study as a pupil-teacher in Prahran, he had a distinguished University career as scholar, exhibitioner, and prizeman. Among his fellow-students were Judge Molesworth, Professors Kernot and Andrew, Sir John Madden, Mr. J. B. Gregory, Mr. J. Henning Thompson, and others of that small early group who have since made names for themselves. His wide scholarship and great ability as a teacher brought him extensive practice as a private tutor, and among those whom he "coached" at the University were Mr. Justice Hodges, Dr. Bride, and Dr. Wallaston. After appointment as an inspector of schools he rose to be assistant inspector-general, and was chosen to succeed Mr. Charles A. Topp (now Public Service Commissioner) as head of the Training College. In the list of 150 signatures of his close friends in professional circles who presented him with a congratulatory address on that appointment, the first five names are: "John Madden, LL.D., J. H. Hood, M.A., LL.B., T. B. Higgins, M.A., LL.B., G. H. Neighbour, M.A., LL.B., Wm. H. Irvine, M.A., LL.M." When the Patterson Ministry's retrenchments closed the Training College Mr. Craig retired on a pension to his house in The Avenue, East Malvern, and became examiner in history at the University in conjunction with Professor Elkington, who had formerly been his colleague as an inspector of schools. Last May he was compelled to resign through valvular disease of the heart, for which he was treated by Mr. Herbert Lillies, M.R.C.S., and Dr. John Williams. His age at death was 62. He leaves three daughters, who are the principals of a ladies' school at Caulfield.

03/8053 Died 20 June 1903.

27 10 86/30786	on 86/29933 S	Dr's report. Called to the unfavourable nature of reports of a similar character it will be distinctly understood that unless greater efficiency in the performance of his duties be shown it need inspection it will probably be considered necessary to take steps to have him reappointed for transfer to a smaller school.
28 9 86/36300 H. Holland		- A teacher of fairly good ability; his lessons during inspection are good, but the work of the classes is such as to show that this work is not steady. The school should do much better than at present. His management of the school is only moderate, and his discipline but fair.
