The career of a rogue and vagabond is thus related by the Bendigo Advertiser:—"A man named Marmaduke William Fisher, hailing from the Western district, who represents himself as postmaster at Hamilton, has come to grief at Eaglehawk. It appears that since 1865 he has travelled about the country getting subscriptions for a book, the materials for which he told his dupes he was gathering as he travelled, and which was to bear the imposing title of Victoria Illustrated. To facilitate his operations, he carried a diary, together with several paltry-coloured sketches, and these he exhibited as the nuclei of his work, which, by the way, was to cost £1 1s. to those who paid the money down, and 30s. to those who gave their names, but promised to pay when the book was published. By his plausible representations he succeeded in getting over 800 subscribers; the work was to be published in two years from 1865, and when there were 700 names. By a cunning use of the subscribers' list, he induced people who saw their friends' names down for £1 1s., to subscribe as well. A number put down their names, and promised to pay the money when the book was published, but this did not suit our literary rogue, and the £1 1s. was put opposite their names the same as if they had given the money. On account of this and other false representations—such as stating that the work was to be published by Mr. Dwight, of Melbourne, who repudiates all connexion with the man—he was caught at Maldon some time ago, and sent to gaol for one month. On getting out he at once resorted to the old game, as it was a paying speculation. But in an evil hour, not content with diddling Mr. William Cook, of the Franklin Hotel, Sailor's Gully, out of £1 1s. for the book, he tried to shirk payment of a sum of 3s. for hotel expenses, and he was given into the custody of the police. On Friday he was brought before the Eaglehawk Court, and sentenced to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for obtaining money on false pretences about his book."

| | 19 10 | 86/40900 H.2. | — Mr. Forbes from his long experience in school is able to make a good show under ordinary inspection; but successive examinations go to show that the teaching is only moderately effective in the classes above the 3rd. — His deafness affects his efficiency to a perceptible extent. The whispering in the school is at times very annoying. The pupils are however well under command & are sufficiently diligent. Mr. Forbes is unable to hear the whispering — This teacher is very eccentric in his manner. |
| | 10 3 | 87/17713 H. | Holland. An old & experienced teacher. Does his work in school quite a la routine manner. The result of his teaching as tested by examination is however barely up to average. Mr. Forbes is somewhat deaf and I hear complaints of his discipline. Under inspection his discipline is very good. Mr. Forbes is quite capable of keeping pupils in order, any breach of discipline consisting doubtless in whispering which, through age & deafness Mr. Forbes is unable to detect. The teacher is rather eccentric. |
