 Arrived - Sept 21. 1870.

The M. A. Mail reports an inquest at Glenlue on Monday, on the body of Mr. Coyle. From the evidence adduced it was evident that during a temporary fit of insanity the unfortunate man took a dose of strychnine. Just previous to dying Mr. Coyle expressed a wish for his brother to sell his property, and take care of Annie, his daughter, and his stepson. The jury returned the following verdict: "That the said Daniel Coyle, aged forty-two years, a native of Ireland, died on the 19th September, at Glenlue, and that his death was caused by his having taken strychnine whilst in a state of temporary insanity, and that there were no marks of violence on the body of the deceased."
