DEATH OF MR JUDKINS

NOTED SOCIAL REFORMER

END OF LONG ILLNESS.

It will be learned with extreme regret by a very large circle of friends that Mr W. H. Judkins, the well-known social reformer, died at his residence, Campbell road, Camberwell, at half-past 12 o'clock to-day.

Mr Judkins had been seriously ill for many months, and it was known by his friends that there was no possibility of his recovery. A few days ago he underwent an operation, with the object of obtaining release from the dreadful pain which he was suffering. He was conscious up to the end, and passed away peacefully.

Mr Judkins was born in Creswick. It was intended to make him a teacher, but, being from boyhood of deeply religious convictions, he interested himself actively in the church as a layman, and determined, like his brother, the Rev. G. A. Judkins, to become a Methodist minister. His first work as a probationer was in New Zealand, but, always delicate, his health broke down, and, regretfully, he abandoned the idea of becoming fully ordained.

He had, however, shown marked ability, both as a writer and worker in the cause of temperance and social reform while in New Zealand. On his return to Melbourne he became associated with the "Review of Reviews" as advertising manager, and subsequently as editor. From the beginning of his career in Melbourne he was active in combating social evils, and his name was soon on almost everybody's tongue.

Probably, from a public standpoint, the most interesting period in Mr Judkins's career was when he led the campaign for the suppression of a certain establishment where it was alleged that gambling was carried on. The police, spurred on by the demands of reformers, tried unsuccessfully for a long time to bring about the closing of the place. Eventually, however, the place was closed up. At that period Mr Judkins had associated with him as workers the Revs. A. R. Edgar, Henry Worrall, T. S. B. Woodfull, and others.

The reformers claimed much of the credit for the passing of the Gaming, Lotteries and Betting Act 1906, and the Amended Licensing Act. Mr Judkins was active in seeking to remedy the anomalies which he considered existed in connection with these Acts. Such questions as gold stealing, the opium traffic, vice on the streets, and dealing with the poor, led to the formation of the Social Reform Bureau, with Mr Judkins as superintendent.

Mr Judkins and his co-workers received many threats of personal violence whilst carrying on their campaign. It was even thought advisable to appoint a bodyguard to Mr Judkins, who was, though not the official leader, really the nerve centre of the reform crusade.

Though, in repose, Mr Judkins was of mild appearance, on the platform he was quite another person. A good speaker, with a well-modulated voice, he could not only debate with great force and earnestness, but he was able to punctuate his subject with appeals to humor, and his method of dealing with an interjector by a witty or crushing reply made him highly popular on the platform among the supporters of his cause. In appearance, he was below the average stature, and his slight, dapper-looking figure, attired in a light frock suit, and silk hat, became very well known.

Mr Judkins, who was 43 years of age, leaves a widow and a daughter, who is eleven years of age.

THE LATE MR W. H. JUDKINS.
