Sir

Depositions

Henry Winter
James Jones and
Maria Gordon.
and J. Carbyshire's Report and Account.

I have the honor to forward the enclosed documents as per margin in re a Magisterial Inquiring held by John Carbyshire Esquire at Ewborin on the 16th instant concerning the death of one William Winter.

The Secretary
Law Department
Melbourne

I have the honor to be
Sir
Your most obedient servant
Wm. Smart
acting Clerk of Petty Sessions

Having viewed the body of the deceased William Winter, and examined the wound in his right thigh, I found it greatly lacerated above the knee on the inside, the thigh bone broken, and the body blood less.

From the evidence of Henry Winter and the other examined it would appear that the death was the result of "accident" - through want of caution principally in the part of deceased himself.

Eruben
16. July 1879.

Maria Gordon being duly sworn states that in the afternoon of the 15. (yesterday) Henry Winters came to our house and said that his brother William was shot in the leg, Mr. Gordon went immediately and I followed with bandages, Mr. Gordon left to get a horse to take the deceased to Beechworth, with the assistance of William Winters I put on a very tight bandage to try and stop the bleeding, the blood ^{had been} pouring from the wound, previous to my putting in the bandage, after putting in the bandage the flow of blood was stopped, the distance from my house to the place where the deceased lay is about ten (10) chains. I saw that he was very much exhausted, I sent his brother for brandy, and raised the deceased up, on to my lap, he complained of nothing but a pain in the abdomen, no complaint of the pain in the wound, Mr. Jones & Mr. Gordon, brought a board about half an hour after the accident and with other assistance brought him up to his ~~brother's~~ ^{own} house, he died about half past four o'clock, he did not attach any blame to his brother, but described the accident as related by the previous witness Henry Winters.

Maria Gordon

The deposition of Maria Gordon

James ~~Johnson~~^{Jones} being duly sworn deposes that I was in my own paddock adjoining McBride's paddock, at about half past two yesterday when I heard a shot fired, some little time (a few moments) after I heard a cooey I thought it came from Mrs.
Gordon's I answered, and proceeded down through the paddock on reaching the road I saw one of the Misses Gordon coming up, and she informed me of the occurrence, I then went down the road and met Mr. Gordon and with him & another went to the spot where deceased lay, I saw a great quantity of blood on the ground, seemingly all her coat's hair had, the wounds bandaged when I reached the place.
I then went to Mr. Gordon with himself to get a board to put deceased on and returning with assistance from Mr. Gordon carried the deceased to Mr. Gordon's house, deceased made no complaint except of pain in the stomach, I remained until he died about half past four o'clock.

James Jones

The deposition of James Jones was read over to him by, and signed in presence of J. D. & J. P.

Proceeding of a Magistrate Inquiring held at Renbush on the 16th July 1879, regarding the death of William Winter aged 15 years and 9 months.

Henry Winter aged 14 years being duly sworn states that he is the deceased's brother, I was with my brother in Mr Brides paddock about half past 2 o'clock in the afternoon ^{of yesterday} we went to shoot ducks, he came up in front of me just as I was about to put down the hammer of the gun, I had the gun at my hip, and ^{under} my coat at the time, the gun being at full cock, in letting the hammer down the gun went off, and the charge of shot passed through my brother's right thigh, he being then about four (4) yards in front of me, - he fell and asked me to go for Mr Jones. I proceeded to Mr Jones, but he did not come. At ~~that~~ ^{that} my brother then told me to go for Mr Gordon, I went at once Mr Gordon came back with me and placed a bandage on his thigh.

Henry Winter

The deposition of Henry Winter
was read over to him, ^{by} and signed by him in presence of J. Darbyshire J.P.
