Deceased placed the revolver on the stool himself and knew it was there he told me so himself also that it was not wrapped in paper. The facts are simply these Mr Adney Bank Manager placed the revolver on the counter and it was the duty of deceased to put it in a draw under the counter so that it would be handy he evidently went to do this but knowing that he wanted something out the drawer, he placed it on the stool and in pulling out the drawer it knocked the revolver down causing it to discharge one bullet. Statements of Stanley Victor Howell, & Oliver Colvill Mr Danne who is the Church of England Minister is absent at present and therefore cannot set his statement but he will be present at the Inquest.

Only one cartridge was discharged

I have heard the deposition read at the opening of this Inquest. My son made a statement to me before he died and said that when he went into the Bank that morning (22 Oct) I saw something wrapped up in a rag which I thought was the Bank Automatic Revolver. I removed it from the counter to a stool, so as I could dust the counter. Shortly afterwards I pulled out the Cash drawer and knocked the revolver off the stool - and it exploded. The bullet struck me on the right knee.

The deceased said he did not own the Automatic Revolver, and had not seen for 3 weeks prior to that morning. He said ~~that~~ he thought Mr. R. Danne had put it on the counter. My son left my home at Springvale at 6.45 a.m. in good health and spirits - he had not financial or other troubles.

I remember the morning of Oct 22, when I first entered the office at about 9 o'clock. I placed the Bank's Automatic pistol which was lightly folded in a red cloth on the counter. I did not see it again until the accident occurred. At about ten o'clock I was standing at the Ledger desk when I heard a report and a fall, and found Mr McClure lying on the floor with blood stains on his clothes. I at once put a pad on the wound in the groin. I sent for doctors. On asking Mr McClure what had happened he said I placed the pistol on the stool and shortly afterwards forgetting it was there, pulled out the cash drawer knocking the pistol off the stool -

When I placed the pistol on the counter on the morning of the 22nd it was loaded. I do ~~remember~~ know whether the safety catch was on or off - The deceased accounts with the Bank were quite in order. I know of no reason why the deceased should commit suicide. It was usual for me to place the automatic pistol on the counter. There was also another revolver for the use of the Bank's officials - I first saw the pistol (produced) on the morning of the accident in the room occupied by Mr Danne where I left it on the previous Saturday. In the late afternoon I removed it and placed it on the mantelpiece and afterwards on the counter -

On Monday 22nd Oct last I was summoned by Telephone to attend the late William McKane who had met with an accident at Koo Wee Rup. I met him at Cranbourne being brought in a car with Dr White of Pakenham. We brought him to Dandenong to Nurse Campbells Private Hospital where his wound was investigated.

I found that there was a small abrasion on the Right Knee a wound penetrating the Testis Scrotum and another wound over the left Saphenous opening at the upper end of the thigh. He had been bleeding freely and there was considerably difficulty in tying one of the main veins of the leg.

He progressed favorably until the evening of the following Saturday week when as a result of two severe Secondary Haemorrhages due to the septic inflammation about the Femoral vessels it became necessary to tie the External Iliac Artery which was done after consultation with Drs W H Summers and Baileys of Melbourne.

Three days later the patient died from a general septic poisoning as a result of the wound received.
